National Accreditation for Quality
www.JointCommission.com

#1 Look for National Accreditation for Quality by The Joint Commission

By working with a home care provider that has earned National Accreditation for Quality by The Joint Commission, you can rest assured that you are making the right choice in pre-qualified home care providers

#2 – Look for a provider who properly screens, trains and manages caregivers

- Trusted and experienced W-2 employees
- Criminal background check
- Work references checked
- Drivers license check
- Bonded and insured
- All caregivers covered under workers comp

#3 – Look for the providers ability to customize a home care plan

- Flexibility in schedules
- Ability to staff wherever you may call home
- Customized care plan to meet your exact needs
- No long term contract

#4 – Look for a provider who is always there to meet your changing needs

- Coordination of care and communication with Home Health and Hospice
- Ongoing assessments by experienced care managers
- Specialized hospice and dementia training

#5 – Look for a provider who is dedicated to continuous improvement

- Ongoing caregiver training
- 24/7 live access to local office personnel
- Continuous communication and feedback

#6 – Look for a provider who begins with a complimentary home assessment

- Qualified care manager creates individualized care plan
- Assistance with additional community resources needed for home safety
- Access to additional community resources
